TEXAS COUNTY, MISSOURI

Reference:
Encyclopedia of Missouri
Edited by Conrad, 1910
Pages 176-177

A county in the sothern central part of the State, bounded on the north by Pulaski, Phelps and Dent Counties; east by Dent and Shannon Counties; south by Howell and Douglas Counties and west by Wright and Laclede Counties.

About 1820 the McDonalds and Burkhardts settled on Robidoux Creek, and a few years later William Thornton, John Sherrill, the Carters and the Baldridges, with their families, settled near where is located the village of Licking.

Texas County was organized by legislatvie act, approved February 14, 1845. This act named James Turner, of Wright County; Samuel Grigsby, of Pulaski, and John Buford, of Shannon commissioners to locate a permanent seat of justice, and directed that they meet on the first Monday in May, 1845, at Ellsworth, a small town on the Piney River, the first hamlet of the county, settled in 1837.

The county seat commissioners selected land, and in 1846 laid out the town of Houston and named it as the county seat. The county was named in honor of the "Lone Star" State, and the county seat was called after General Sam Houston, of Texas.
